Pursuant to the Court’s Revised Protocols for In-Person Argument (November 15, 2022) (“RPIPA”) and Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 34(b), Appellant Sisvel International S.A. (“Sisvel”) respectfully moves unopposed to appear remotely for or reschedule the oral argument in these appeals calendared for July 12, 2023, before Panel F for the Court.

Undersigned counsel is scheduled to present oral argument on behalf of Sisvel and was recently diagnosed with a bacterial lung infection that has caused fever, severe cough, and shortness of breath within fourteen days of the calendared argument. Though counsel tested negative for COVID-19 and hopes that the infection will resolve after completing a prescribed combination of antibiotics prior to argument, the RPIPA states that counsel cannot enter the National Courts Building with such symptoms at this time. See RPIPA at 1 (“No person may enter the National Courts Building if they ... [h]ave had symptoms consistent with COVID-19 within the previous 14 days, such as a temperature in excess of 100.4 degrees cough, shortness of breath, ...”). As advised by the RPIPA, undersigned counsel also contacted the Clerk’s Office, which informed counsel that it could not advise on whether the Court would also restrict access to someone visibly sick from something other than COVID-19. Let’s Chat, <https://cafc.uscourts.gov/home/the-court/clerks-office/>, accessed July 5, 2023. Other counsel representing Sisvel in this appeal are not able to appear in-person next week to substitute for undersigned counsel in light of preparation requirements, travel, and/or professional conflicts.

Accordingly, Sisvel respectfully moves to allow undersigned counsel to appear remotely for argument on July 12, 2023, or to reschedule oral argument to the last week of July or later to allow undersigned counsel to fully prepare and appear in-person for argument under the 14-day symptomology restrictions in the RPIPA.

Counsel for Cross-Appellants was contacted regarding this motion and stated that there is no opposition, no response will be filed, and that their preference would be to reschedule oral argument to allow undersigned counsel to fully prepare and argue when not ill.

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Robert J. Gajarsa
